FILLED WITH AN ECLECTIC MIX OF ANTIQUE AND URBAN FURNISHINGS, OLD Glory Antiques is the culmination of owner, Holly Kuhn's, life-long love of decorating. I was having so much fun re-creating and restyling my own home, I eventually decided to open my own store where I could grow and share my collection of ideas."

Holly's talent for finding useful purposes for antique and vintage items is displayed throughout the 1,700-square-foot space: Speckled with rust, worn scales balance oranges and pears; and old wooden tool boxes, originally used by carpenters to carry their tools, hold condiments on a kitchen table.

Hanging from the ceiling of Old Glory Antiques is a handmade chandelier, which features three tiers of antique silver spoons. For Holly, this reclaimed accessory encapsulates her shop's motto: the uncommon, the unexpected, the beautiful. When visiting this charming suburb of Denver, you'll find plenty of attractions to add to your agenda, from shopping and great restaurants to fabulous nightlife in nearby downtown Denver. RH
